THE JUNIOR CLASS

... of ...

Swarthmore College

1907

S another year draws to its close another HALCYON, recorder of our college life, is thrust upon the world. We pray you accept it, imperfect as it is; and if, perchance, we have brought again before you a memory of one pleasant moment spent among your friends at dear old Swarthmore, we shall be content.

The Senior Class

HEN your Halcyon finally appeared, several pages were filled with your self-praise. In your egotism and jealousy, you refused to write the glorious history of the class of 1908, lest your best efforts and fondest hopes be put entirely in the shade. You well realized the truth of the saying, "Blest be they who blow their own trumpets; otherwise they won't get blowed." We can find nothing to add to your vainglorious account, and a great deal to detract from it. Much might be said about your defeat of the Penn Freshmen on the track, and some mention might be made of how we licked you in football, even though the officials were Seniors and the darkness was fast coming on. But we will be kind to you during your last days at Swarthmore, and after some good advice send you upon your way with our best wishes. Since we realize that the honor and reputation of our College will depend, in some measure, upon your actions in the outside world, we hope you will lay aside a little of your egotism, act a little more rationally and considerately, and do your best to spread the fame and glory of Swarthmore.

The Junior Class

S winners of the rush and the football game with 1907, and basketball champions for two years, not to mention the facts that we won the inter-class relay race, that "Oom Paul" was captain of the football team (with "Pritch" captain next year), that Dill was basketball captain, and that we also had three men on the team, we feel that we have our share of collegiate honors and can let them speak for us. Therefore, we'll let you form your own judgment of our abilities and ask you to make a personal acquaintance with the members of our class as they are presented to you in the following pages.

Members of the Class of 1908

Helen Minerva Baker, West Chester, Pa.,

Latin.

"And little would be left you, I'm afraid,
If all your debts to Greece and Rome were paid."

Helen is a Greek and Latin "stude," very industrious, very conscientious. When she is away from Collection she marks us all present. Why don't you let us know, Helen, when you are going to be away, so that we might use the privilege? We like to hear Helen's giggle at Junior feasts. She is very loyal to her class, and smuggled at least seventeen (17) hats under her—But why tell the Sophomores?

Samuel Francis Butler, $\Phi \Sigma K$, Moore, Pa.,

Engineering.

"Not all at once, as thunder breaks the cloud— The notes at first were rather sweet than loud."

Frank sang in the Glee Club—when there was one. After much persuasion, he consented to apply the soft pedal, and we are still able to enjoy the protection of a roof on Collection Hall. Frank used to be lazy, but the Hallown Staff cured him. He was so tired one morning long ago that he yawned in Collection. When he realized his shocking behavior, he tried to cover the yawn by an embarrassed cough. The artifice was so apparent that even Prexie smiled. Frank has only one interest in life, but he wouldn't tell us what that was.

John Stokes Clement, JT, Whiteford, Md.,

Economics.

Jack is our class fusser—for all receptions and committees he is ready with his "partner" (see speech by Dill in class minutes). That he has a large opinion of himself has been realized only too late by the class, which holds itself responsible. He calls himself a Christian, which is a large name for a basketball player. Never mind, Jack, we love you just the same!

Ida Virginia Craythorn, Trenton, N. J.,

Economics.

Have you ever seen Ida laugh? If you have only heard her laugh you have missed a great deal, for when she smiles she begins with her mouth, passes it on to her eyes, raises her eyebrows, wrinkles her forehead, and behold! the smile is achieved. Ida never consciously made a racket, but is usually on hand for a '08 frolic. We used to tease her about Satty, but we soon got tired. There wasn't anything in it, anyhow.

George Warder Cresson, J Y, Swarthmore, Pa.,

Engineering.

What is more refreshing than a man with a sense of humor? Why, one morning the sight of one of our esteemed members walking down the hall with a candle in her hand sent him into peals of laughter. He has a fondness for freight trains and believes the railroad to be his forte, in which he will be a big man some day. We advise Juniper Tar.

Ralph Judson Dill, K 2, Philadelphia, Pa.,

Engineering.

"Dill pickles."

"A swarthy man much given to haughty manners."

Ralph is a true gentleman. Do you remember how at the Delaware-Swarthmore basketball game he soothed and comforted that injured Delaware player? This exhibition of tenderness is but an example of Ralph's method of conducting a class meeting. He was Class President for the first semester, and didn't hesitate to call the refractory members to order. When we have a "Class Day," we are going to give him a package of toothpicks.

George Gustavus Dillworth, Philadelphia, Pa.,

English.

This little man is George. He is the most cheerful man in College, and with all, takes everything seriously. His cheerfulness never varies and sticks with him through all vicissitudes. No class that has George in it can fail to be happy, for the influence of his genial smile extends even to the professor. Besides, George is a perfect gentleman and will do anything to oblige you. That he retains all these good traits after coming from town every day for three years on our "Dolly Varden" railroad, we consider marvelous.

Anna Dorathy Dotger, Charlotte, N. C.,

German.

Small packages from the Southland are thankfully received. We are glad to welcome Dorathy in our midst with true Northern hospitality. She is the girl with the laughing eyes. There is only one thing that troubles her, and that is that Ralph is so proud of that wavy forelock of his.

Harwell Beeson Dutton, Boothwyn, Pa.,

Economics.

"Muggsy" is one of those little boys with a pink-and-white complexion, who always runs around with a cherubic grin defacing his countenance. This gives an impression of saintliness and innocence, and proclaims the wearer a most gullible youth. But beware! Appearances are often deceiving, and "Muggsy's" is no exception. The very words that flow from his lips have no more foundation for truth than the devil's would have were he trying to convince St. Peter he should enter the golden gates. We won't say any more because Muggsy (we mean Harwell) has the profs faded, and we wouldn't give him away for the world.

Edith May Fisher, Jeannette, Pa.,

English.

Quiet? Yes; but this undemonstrative maiden has a very decided will of her own, and her actions are determined largely by her likes and dislikes. Having a good many extra credits, but not wishing to graduate with 1907, she went home the second semester of her Junior year to run "our automobile," and to take lessons in "How to save your pocket allowance."

Katherine Griest, $\Pi B \Phi$, Philadelphia Pa.

As she is a graduate of Friends' Central, Kitty once had serious intentions of leaving our class, but fortune interposed, causing her to leave College for a year, so that she has been forced to join with us for good or bad. One of Kitty's peculiarities is her voice. It starts out like it was stuck in the top of her throat, but the final impression is that of a voice coming through a long tunnel.

Roy Linden Hill, Markham, Pa.,

Chemistry.

Hill is the bright and shining light of the class, with only one vice casting a shadow over his otherwise exemplary character. Who would guess it? Roy Linden Hill matches pennies! Why, one day up in the day students' room, Hill was party to a game in which twenty-three cents were in sight at once. This was too much for Hill. The suspense involved in contemplating the rise and fall of those twenty-three pennies was gradually undermining his mind. Now, we are told in strict confidence that Hill always withdraws from a game in which more than six cents are in evidence.

William Daniel Hines, Φ K F, New Oxford, Pa.,

Engineering.

Every time his friends get tired of saying "Billy," Billy becomes "Buzz." This comes from the fact that he is continually "buzzing" around trying to make the time pass pleasantly for himself and others. Buzz is a deep schemer, as was shown by his plans for eliminating Coxey from the hurdles in the Interclass Meet. Billy has proved himself a great mixer in all student affairs—if anything occurred above the ordinary he was sure to be in it.

Jacob Hoffman, Philadelphia, Pa.,

Engineering.

Jake is one of our class basketball men. Of course he likes girls, and all that sort of thing, but when he heard he had made the training table, his happiness was complete. If you want to find him at any of the class or college receptions, just look out in the kitchen during "eats" time. Try to fuss him some time by asking him what became of the strong and mighty butter; and when he gives you the stony stare, ask him the way to Ridley Park.

Eleanor Janney, Baltimore, Md.,

English.

A daughter of the Muses! From no one else could such poems come. A gentle maid who frequently finds the stern gray of the college walls and bareness of its halls unendurable, and thereupon flees to Rose Valley, that haven of rest. The ardent leader of that philanthropic society, Nu Iota Eta Pi.

Laura Dorothy Lister, $KA\theta$, Germantown, Pa.,

French.

"Dot," the fountain of conversation and latest linguistic machine, guaranteed to fill one square inch of space with more words per minute than any machine in existence. Hers is the beautiful golden hair, so much admired for its wavy evenness. This is her crowning feature, whereas her greatest tendency is towards the alcove.

Sherman Cox Lloyd, Wilmington, Del.,

Engineering.

Sherm goes down to posterity as the gentleman owning the "horse laugh" that almost disrupted Physics V. He also has other marks of repute or, maybe, disrepute. Once he showed with pride the various sources of illumination scattered about his rooms; but alas, the "Supe" rebelled, and now they are no more. Though his knowledge of the ways and by-ways of certain college departments is unparalleled he was unable to impart it so that his protégé could use it successfully. Poor Woddrop.

Grace Bowen Maxwell, Lansdowne, Pa.,

French.

Grace hasn't very much spare time this year. There are so many dances and teas and dinners and house parties coming at the same time that she couldn't be expected to have those English themes ready. Grace is our class beauty, and her name is a safe index to her nature, but (whisper it softly) she has two faults of which time alone can cure her. One is a fondness for rough house, and the other is the execrable habit of collecting things—stamps, postal eards, note books, college pins, photographs, dance souvenirs—yes, even fraternity pins, have each had their day. Now don't say anything to Grace about this; she might not like it.

Susanna Parry, Riverton, N. J.,

Biology.

Sue well exemplifies the saying, "It is more blessed to give than to receive." Verily, she would cheerfully give away her last piece of fudge. She has an attractive "kitchen" in her room, the contents of which she shares with all. She would never consciously hurt anyone's feclings, her manners are quite a study; and anyone who drops into 108 is sure to be royally entertained.

Louise Adams Pfouts, Atlantic City, N. J.,

English.

"Little ambling peach of Adam."

If ever you have a hard case of blues, take Louise as a remedy; warranted to kill or cure; a good laugh insured. No matter how dry the situation, she twists np her face, cracks a joke, and the day is saved. Would you think her reckless to look at her? Ah, but she is; one of her great regrets is that she can find none who will risk their lives with her while she learns to run her auto around corners. It is a matter of great perplexity to Louise that she doesn't make all A's; she is sure she works harder than anyone else in college! (Who'd 'a' thunk it?)

Herman Pritchard, $\Phi \Sigma K$, Pendleton, Ind.,

Engineering.

Pritch is a favorite of Prof. Hoadley's. Why? 'Cause he's a plugger. No, he's not brilliant, but he gets there; and 'Sne' was the only one who ever had the nerve to flunk him. Pritch's football record is just like his classroom record. He always delivers the goods. One redeeming feature of the Cornell game was the way he made their captain eat a few of his disrespectful oaths. We wonder if it is only a story or did Pritch really sit on the offender's head? (The mud was only about six inches deep.) Pritch will lead our warriors next fall.

Frances Richardson, K K I, Torresdale, Pa.,

Biology.

Fran is a quiet person who usually gets what she wants without anyone realizing it. She is an excellent scholar, and a pleasant person to have around—"like a kitten, or an open fireplace, you know." She would like certain of her West Wing neighbors to coach her in French but, as they don't approve of tutoring, Fran writes her exercises in solitude. Some day she will realize the value of—a martyr's crown.

Dwight David Rowlands, $\Phi K \mathcal{F}$, Racine, Wis.,

Engineering,

Dave is the class football hero. Besides, he stood high in the social life of the College and managed to become interested in several college activities aside from the Glee Club—that used to be. Alas and alack, the College has lost Dave; no more will he play on the football team or valiantly guard our goal in lacrosse. The cause is the same old story: "our boy" fell a victim to a touch of heart trouble. O Lenore!

Harvey T. Satterthwaite, Trenton, N. J.,

History.

When we need someone to argue with Lamborn about the meals, or with the Faculty to open the library at night, or to persuade anybody to do anything for us, we send for Satty. While his manner is always deferential, his arguments are forcible and hit from the shoulder. Satty is ordinarily the best-natured man in College, as well as one of the brightest students, and it is with true regret that we learn he is going to leave 1908 with the prospect of raking together enough extra credits to graduate with 1907. But never mind, Satty's heart is with 1908.

Mary Satterthwaite, Wawa, Pa.,

Biology.

No, she isn't a cousin to Harvey. We call her "Scat" because she is not Satty. She's little and chipper like a sparrow, never still, never quiet. Mary is a most gracious hostess, as the 1908 girls learned that stormy night when they had their straw ride.

Nathan Lewis Smith, Linwood, Md.,

Engineering.

A product of the Sunny Sonth is Nate. See that smile. "Right Roger," it is not a smile, but a grin. Nate's ambition is to be known as the laziest and sleepiest man in the class, but he will occasionally wake up, as Mr. Marriott has cause to know. Since he has become a Junior, Nate has come out strong for athletics, and may be seen running around with a lacrosse stick as a preparatory training for the two-mile run.

Florence Stapler, Abington, Pa.,

French.

"Tod" makes a capital hockey player, and has helped in many struggles for 1908. She is also very fond of dancing, and—

Florence is jolly, and Florence is gay, Races to Avondale every day—to attend various festivities. She seems to be very fond of "Buds." I advise you not to mention this to her.

Frank Brinton Strode, $K \Sigma$, West Chester, Pa.,

Chemistry.

Though a day student, coming from the wilds of West Chester every day, Brint has managed to get in trouble on various reception committees and on our HALCYON Staff. He must have been born under a lucky star, for with all his shining in the social world his standing as a student is beyond reproach.

Norman Walton Swayne, West Chester, Pa.,

Engineering.

As a member of the Student Committee, poor Swayne's life has been a hard one. He lives on the fourth hall, surrounded by an ungodly mob of Fresh; who listen patiently to all his admonitions but straightway go and do the other thing. When the mob gets too obstreperous, Swayne, showing wisdom far beyond his years, takes to his room to remain till the cyclone blows over.

Granville Taylor, Norristown, Pa.,

Engineering.

Granville came to us from Friends' Central School. He butted into our class as a would-be Sophomore when he was as green as fresh paint, but a whole lot stickier. Since theu he has improved remarkably—in which direction we will not attempt to say, lest we offend him and cause him to throw up his job on our staff, thus plunging us into financial ruin(g).

Eugene Underhill, Jr., Swarthmore, Pa.,

Biology.

Underhill, along with Professor Hayes, holds the unique honor of walking a dilapidated "bike" up the asphaltum. We are in daily fear lest he ride all the way up and thus leave Professor Hayes the only one enjoying this mark of distinction. Underhill takes college seriously as a brain factory, and consequently little is seen of him outside of his classes, in which he struggles to shine.

Clifford Howard Vernon, $\Phi K \mathcal{F}$, Pomeroy, Pa.,

Engineering.

As is usually the case with bluffers, Cliff is one of the most popular boys in the class. He has little difficulty in getting favors done for him; but, my, how he does change around exam. time. Wet towels and black coffee don't come in. He does enough work from dark to dawn to pass a whole semester. We advise the profs not to be too hard on him, because he thinks he works all the time.

William Pierce Wilbur, K 5, Swarthmore, Pa.,

Engineering.

The man of many nicknames, Monk, Little Monk, Little Willie, and the Kid. Since William has been the Halcyon editor, his tendencies toward revision and correction have led him to remonstrate with the Class President on the subject of spelling. We see no reason why the President should not spell "prophet" "phropet" if he wishes. The position certainly carries with it some privileges. If you notice any misspelled words in the Halcyon, credit them to the publishers—the editor has not overlooked them.

Elizabeth Wilgus, Bordentown, N. J.,

French.

Elizabeth is another enthusiastic member of the Class of 1908. She is very fond of brass bands and brass buttons—Bordentown Military Institute is a very nice place! She says she has vivid remembrances, after a six hours' struggle with a report, of a personal lecture in class on "How to condense an historical report." In her next report, she had all the great Western meat and fruit condensing factories beaten to a froth. Good work! Elizabeth!

Helen Wintringham Williams, Norristown, Pa.,

English.

Have you ever seen Helen tobogganing? The January snow storms have filled Helen's heart with delight, for each afternoon after four she takes her little toboggan and goes down the campus at a reckless speed. We all fear for her life when she starts her treacherous descents. Helen has a brilliancy surpassed by noue, and tact—she has all the professors under her will; just sit by her a few times in Economics class, and you will see how she does it.

Naomi Williams, Swarthmore, Pa.,

French.

Nome's cheerful voice can be heard at all hours in the halls of East Wing: "Say, girls, got anything to eat? I'm so hungry!" One night she awakened every girl in Fourth to beg for something to eat, and had quite a pile of "slickery" in the middle of the hall to carry downstairs to her room, when finished. She considers Trenton a very superior place, and it's not so far away as you would suppose; it is possible to get back from there to visit your Alma Mater (?) at least three or four evenings a week.

Katherine Wolf, $KA\theta$, Philadelphia, Pa.,

German.

Fond of athletics and wholesome outdoor life, Katherine has become a leader in all our sports. She holds a high place in the hockey and tennis world, and is an enthusiastic cross-country walker. She is a Friends' Central School girl, and 1908 was mighty glad to have her join its ranks. She has earned a reputation for good intellectual work as a member of the HALCYON and Phænix Staffs.

Alice Worth, $K A \theta$, Coatesville, Pa.,

English.

Truly it was a great shock to the College when Alice turned "dippy stude." She haunts the library like an ever-present spirit, and the knowledge she imbibes therein is unfathomable. Yet with it all she still keeps her charm and graciousness of manner; her hospitality is known to all who have ever visited her in her room, especially during the grape fruit season. 'Twas a shame that at Christmas the joke about the Battle of Gettysburg was entirely lost upon her, but the constant reminders that her friends have inflicted upon her have reached the point where we would say,

"Be to her virtues very kind And to her faults a little blind." (Our largest and smallest men failed to have their pictures taken. Doubtless they thought the contrast would be too great when separated by only a few pages. We thank them for their consideration.)

William James Bradley, Jr., Camden, N. J.,

History.

"The glass of fashion and the mold of form."

Thus little William came to us when we were starting our second year of college joys. It was his superfluous amount of gray matter that got him in, I assure you; for many have striven for this same honor, but fallen by the roadside exhausted by the pace we set them. Thus much praise is due to our worthy William for his brilliancy.

William F. Krueger, $\Phi \Sigma K$, Watertown, Wis.,

German.

The youth with the siren voice; the youth who in the rosy dawn of the awakening morn aroused the damsels of West Wing to earthly cares and duties by the gentle notes of his glorious voice; the youth who can chant, "Humphrey's, get up," with such perfect harmony. Do you remember when he was trying to skate? Pretty picture, wasn't it! Better stick to football, Bill. Krueger isn't much of a fusser any more. We told him once that all the Worrell(ed) loved a lover; he shied, and is now strictly impartial in bestowing his favor.

The Sophomore Class

IIERE to begin and what to say is pretty hard when no material offers itself, especially as we don't want to excuse or apologize for any of your shortcomings. At last we see something tangible floating around—a sort of abused and broken straw. Who said you never had a football or basketball team? It's rather hard to get evidence from the scores, though you did have a really brilliant beginning. Nothing daunted, however, by your reverses, you set to work and organized a baseball team. Your early successes swelled your heads so that after beating a prep. school or so you thought you could play the real article. Do you mind how you came home from Marcus Hook? With all these worries holding you down it is little to be wondered at that you could not find the courage to organize an oratorical team.

Notwithstanding your meager accomplishments, you have monopolized the limelight a good deal and attained a certain amount of notoriety, as it were. Your lack of brains, your collection of dime museum celebrities, and your general propensities for getting into trouble, have all aided in bringing this about. A good many of your characteristics will, in all probability, be outgrown before you become Seniors. We hope so: for we should hate to have you be held up as models for future Freshmen, when by your very acts and manners you show yourselves "as stubborn as mules and ignorant as clowns."

The Freshman Class

EAR Mamma:

At last i am settled down here, as much as those wicked Sophs—they calls themselves "Sops"—will let me settle. i know better than to write i with a small letter, but only the Juniors and Seniors use capital I. The Sophs think they can, but they are mistaken. Everything with them is i, i, i, which goes to prove what Mr. Lowes, a Dr. up here, said about Sophomoric spirit is very true.

Early in the year we had a class meeting and the Sops, as usual, tried to butt in. But we showed them that though they excelled in hot air, when it came to action we were ahead. They got mad and kicked the panels out of the door, then their ardor dampened and they tried to put us out with the fire extinguisher. But it didn't work. We elected all our class officers; and they have to foot the bill for damages.

Then we had a keg rush. The Sops talked a lot, of course; but, of course, we won. They put Coble—O mamma, he is such a big man!—on the keg, and there was no room left for our hands; he covered the keg. The Sops were pretty sore afterwards and tried to get even by hazing us a lot more.

i wonder if i shall ever grow up to be a mighty upper classman. They are so dignified and influential—even the Sops look up to them—and we freshmen are willing to do anything for them.

i am being very good and i go into social hour very seldom. i always get scared. Wish i were an upper classman: they don't get seared.

Your aff't son,

____ 1910.

P. S. The Sops got up a football team. They thought they could lick us, but when the game eame off they changed their minds. It was the same way in basketball—only worse. We beat them.

M. Will on

UR football team of 1906 met with great disappointments as well as great successes. Cornell met us at an unfortunate time for us and proceeded to even up for that 14 to 0 of the year before. The Navy game was the most heartbreaking of all. The Navy's defense was magnificent. Time after time during the second half they were driven back, only to rally and get the ball and punt out of danger. Swarthmore was beaten: they took defeat as sportsmen should.

The brightest spot of all was the 4-to-0 defeat of Pennsylvania. By that Swarthmore accomplished something long deemed impossible. That victory was not a fluke; it was fought for and hard earned. Stung by the defeat at Ithaca, the team easily defeated Amherst, 21 to 0.

The one sad event during the season was the injury to Charlie Barrett in the Navy game, as a result of which he lay in the hospital, suffering severe pain, for several months. Barrett was the best half-back ever at Swarthmore, and one of the best who ever donned a uniform.

Captain Krueger led a valiant crowd of warriors last year; may Pritchard lead us to victory over the big Red Team next fall.

BASKET BALL

THILE the basketball season just closed was not so successful as was hoped for, the team always played a hard game and never quit. Several men were lost to the team through illness, but those who took their places worked their hardest for Swarthmore.

Contrary to the usual expectations, the season was financially a success, as Manager Henrie reported a substantial balance.

The men trained faithfully, and Captain Dill deserves credit for the showing his team made under unexpectedly adverse circumstances. There will be left in College a fine nucleus for next year's team.

HE prospects for the 1906 haerosse team were extraordinarily bright, for six veterans of the "Intercollegiate Lacrosse Champions of the United States" of the year before were back in College. But prospects are not the things to win games with, and when it came to the actual line-up a brand-new team, with the exception of two men, played on Whittier Field. However, the team had a fighting chance; and fight it did. The men had the advantage of Mr. Grimes' coaching, backed up by Doe Shell's training, and they proceeded to show that new men can play the game successfully. Hard and consistent lacrosse was played in every game. If you look at the scores you will find that Swarthmore was defeated by only two colleges: Johns Hopkins, 5 to 4, and Toronto, 4 to 3. There was no better showing of the team's fighting spirit than in these two games. We are all proud of the men of whom it was composed.

The season of 1907 should be a record breaker. Coached by Swarthmore's famous athlete. Willie Crowell, and fighting as it always does, we can see nothing but success as a reward for the team's efforts.

TRACK

HE season of 1906 was a banner year in Swarthmore track athletics. Representatives were sent to several indoor meets, who always competed successfully. The relay team, composed of Fussell, Heed, Baker, and Henrie, won by inches from Johns Hopkins, Maine, University of New York, and the College of the City of New York, in the fast time of 3 minutes $32\frac{2}{5}$ seconds. Later, New York University, Lehigh, and Dickinson were defeated in dual track meets.

The most successful showing during the whole year was in the intercollegiates. Maxwell, Krueger, Baker, and Henrie were sent to Boston. Maxwell qualified in the shot put and hammer throw, Krueger in the shot put, Baker in the half mile, and Henrie in the quarter. The result of the finals showed two third places for Swarthmore; Maxwell in the shot put and Baker in the half mile.

Captain Henrie was reëlected this year, which promises to be equally as successful as last.

The Joseph Leidy Scientific Society

Scientific Society was organized in March, 1895, and later received the name of The Joseph Leidy Scientific Society of Swarthmore College. Its object is to keep abreast with the discoveries in the scientific world. There are five sciences included in the work of the association: Astronomy, Biology and Physiography, Chemistry, Engineering, and Physics. The programs of the meetings consist of a report from the instructors in each of the above departments concerning the recent discoveries in their respective sciences. Papers are then read by different members on topics of scientific interest, followed by an open discussion by the Society. The interesting character of these programs is shown by the full attendance at the meetings, from both the College and the borough. The Executive Board consists of a committee of two from each department—one instructor and one student.

The residents of the borough of Swarthmore are eligible to membership, as well as the students and officers of the College. The meetings are held on the second Third-day evening of each month during the college year.

The Young Friends' Association

HIS Association is intended primarily for students, instructors, and other members of our College community; but a considerable number of the neighbors are members, and are identified with its work.

The objects of the organization are twofold: First, the study of the history, literature, and principles of the Society of Friends; and second, the consideration of the vital questions of religion and spirituality which we meet in our everyday life.

For the year 1906-1907 the Association has for its work the course of fourteen lectures on "Early Quakerism: Its History, Method, and Mission." The meetings are held in the College parlor on alternate First-day evenings during the college year.

LITERARY MISCELLAMY Stay, and, if the mood be with you, Glance o'er the pages just ahead.

Some jest, perhaps, or song or rhyme Will belp to drive your cares away.

For how can cares exist at all With mem'ries coming thick and fast Of such happy days at Swarthmore As this, our Halcyon, recalls?

Swarthmore So Dear

Old Welsh Air, "All Thro' the Night"

By the murmurings of Crum's waters.

Swarthmore so dear!

Loved by loyal sons and daughters,

Swarthmore so dear!

With thy peace serene about us,

'Neath thy guiding hand so true,

Calm and stately, gray, protecting,

Swarthmore so dear!

Every heart beats high to praise thee,
Garnet so fair!
Each new triumph helps to raise thee.
Garnet so fair!
Through the golden years of college,
As we tread familiar paths,
Keep us true and right for Swarthmore,
Garnet so fair!

Gently watch and guard thy children,

Mother so dear!

In the years that now lie hidden,

Mother so dear!

When we leave thy loving shelter,

See no more these old gray walls,

Let thy love keep vigil o'er us,

Mother so dear!

Swarthmore Through a Megaphone

Here's your "Seeing Swarthmore" automobile. We show you the greatest number of sights for the cheapest price known. This automobile is not a regular thing at present, but in two years we expect to establish a system of motor cars which will accommodate students at any hour of the day or night.

All ready now; let her go! Before starting, the ladies will please raise their umbrellas and the gentlemen their coat collars, as we are now about to pass through the famous tunnel under the Pennsylvania Railroad, the connecting link between the College and the city of Philadelphia.

We are now ascending the asphaltum. Note the pleasing admixture of snow and ice upon its surface. The young man you see yonder, just picking up himself and a section of a derby hat, is a college student who attempted to catch the 7:40 train into town. Next time he will either wear spikes on his shoes or start one minute earlier. That sleepy-looking young man wandering across the campus on our left is a Senior. He rooms in Wharton Hall and is now going into Philadelphia for breakfast. We are now passing the historical site of the young women's hockey field. Here the young women who have neglected to attend gymnasium classes during the winter months, are put through a strenuous system of punishment in the spring. The partly constructed building which you see beyond is the new Carnegie Library. Yes, madam; when it is finished it is believed that the roof will be very nearly on a level with the basement of the main College building. It will cost $50,000, and will contain much better facilities for coeducation than are now available, as the present library cannot accommodate more than two couples at a time with comfort. You will please note the crowd of children of various ages which have just escaped being run over, they are commonly known as the "faculty children," and represent the student body of the future. The young man and girl whom we have just passed are two of the college students going down to the village for breakfast. The young lady opposite to them, looking the other way, is the president of the executive board. As we approach the main College building the passengers will note the beauty and grandeur of the building, particularly the granite pillars of the front porch.

All out now, for the tour through the College. The passengers will all make sure that their pocketbooks are safe before they enter the front hall. On our right now is the reception parlor, which has been undergoing the process of beautification since the year

1886; it reaches perfection every night between the hours of 6:50 and 7:30. Immediately before you you may see an uncomfortable-looking leather thing; it is called "The Pet," the pet lounging place of tired Seniors. Now, turning to our left, we will visit the post office. No, madam; this is not a bargain counter or an election mob; it is an assemblage of respectable students waiting for the 8 o'clock mail. The tall young man in the midst of the crowd, talking loudly, is Mr. Satterthwaite. He is about to send in to the Faculty a petition for an immediate two weeks' vacation for all students obtaining the grade of A+ or over in all their last examinations. That noise on our left, which some of you may have mistaken for an auction sale, is a Senior class meeting.

Now we will ascend the stairs (the elevators are not yet in running order) and visit the Collection Hall. Here every morning the students sing all the latest hymns to the Faculty. Those who really enjoy music are seldom found here.

Now we pass into East Wing. This is Third Alcove. That horrible smell which permeates the air has come down from the biological laboratory; sometimes the smell is transferred to the dining room. That noise which you may hear going on up there is Dr. Trotter telephoning to the Superintendent's office.

We will now descend to the first floor again. No, sir; that is not a fire alarm; it is the 8:30 bell.

That crowd of people going across the campus is the English I class. We will follow it. Now, ah, here we are. That gentleman who has just fallen down the steps is Mr. Rios, recently arrived from Mexico—perhaps they do not have steps in Mexico. This class, as you may see, contains many students: there are, I believe, ninety-seven, including Mr. Woddrop. Through the telescope I have been able to ascertain that the professor has arrived, and those who have brought opera glasses may see him pacing back and forth before the class. The students on the rear benches are able to locate him by his voice.

Now, returning to the main building—ah, this is the World Literature class! Those wishing to ask questions will have to raise their voices, as the noise here is a little extraordinary. That young lady looking about the room with a bland smile is Miss Lawrence. She has just talked intelligently for five minutes upon something that she never heard of before. Before we leave you will note how the pursuit of the higher branches of learning seems to develop a taste for peanuts.

We are now in the front hall again. The tour really ends here, but we take you back to the station, free, as this is an humane institution, and we do not wish to inflict upon any of our passengers the necessity of having to stay here for lunch. All in, now, for the ride back!

The Evolution of a Freshman

Once upon time there was a Freshman named Mc-Dowell. Now, it so happened that this Freshman McDowell journeyed to an A. A. meeting where, at the request of several Sophs, he declaimed most eloquently (though, curiously enough, silently), emphasizing his speech with violent gestures, on the merits of "Woman's Suffrage." As he warmed up to his subject, his hand, in one of its frequent gyrations, collided with the globe of a gas jet, which immediately suffered a fall from dignity, while McDowell's hand flaunted the red flag of protest against such ill treatment. The hand recovered, but the globe didn't.

In due course of time this same McDowell became a Soph (or, to be more exact, a Sop), with a desire to even up the injustices of his babyhood. The A.

A. meeting was about to begin when suddenly Mc-Dowell, in commanding tones, exhorted a Freshie to take up a broom which happened to be near. As the Freshman was a trifle bashful before company, he hesitated: but not McDowell—gaining possession of the broom, he brought it down with a resonnding thud upon the Freshman, who immediately caved in and waltzed with the broom at the Sop's command. The novelty soon wore off, and McDowell placed a chair near a gas jet and asked for a speech replete with gesticulation. But the Freshman was "next." He never touched the globe, and McDowell relented, but only to give way for another victim. As the new one mounted his platform, McDowell was ready with the introduction: "Mr. Colt will now give us a talk on baby foods."

When you hear shrill cries and you turn around; You see, oh, such rushes and whirls That you wonder what it can all be about Since it's only a crowd of girls. In every girl's hand is a heavy stick,
Which she swings this way and then that;
It all depends—it's field hockey you know—
Just where a small ball can be at.

College A B C's

Alda out walking one sunshiny day Saw Baker and Coble coming her way. They stopped just a moment but didn't stay, Because, as I said, 'twas a cold drizzly day. And Dot who was running across the green, Just roaring at something funny she'd seen, Asked Esther, with many a merry peal, Just what she said that so fussed Mr. Steele. Fisher and Gebhart are happy all day; Homesick? No never. Oh, pshaw! fade away. Helen told Ikles his smile was sublime (Go see for yourself—light's on any time). "Polly Conn," she is wooed by Jones; but pray Is it E. P. or G. B., who can say? Krueger, our captain, has brought us much fame. He is tall; Love is small—lots in a name. McClure hasn't mourned much tho' she's sailed away. For perhaps he'll meet her again next May. Nathan still blushes, but was ready, you know,

To eheer with the loudest for 0 Brien's toe. Just call her Pet, for she really won't mind, And a nicer one 'twould be hard to find. She is a Quaker; just look at her hair. Coy Julia Alice so merry and fair. Here are your flowers—to top all a Rose, Solomon cannot surpass that, I s'pose. Togo, your turn now. Forget you? Oh, no! A former good turn you did us you know When you tried to eat Undy's little white bear. Lo! Miss Vauclain stopped fussing then and there And ran to see; but she couldn't get by Woddrop holding sway, monocle in eye. X, unknown, who can that be? (Maybe it's Ely, too little to see.) Oh, Yates, we miss thee, thy tunes roused us oft Imagining cats on the fence aloft. Zane, without you we could not get along, Good "fellah," nice "fellah" (end of my song).

"Here, Toge"

McDonough has a "Boston Bull"
And Togo is his name.
He goes on walks throughout the land
Till often he's gone lame.

But Togo doesn't mind at all,
For where McDonough goes
He'll follow on with all his might
A-trailing with his nose.

And when he isn't running 'round Or bolting slabs of meat, He's sure to be at football games Right on the players' seat.

He's a connoisseur of basketball, And barks out loud and long When all the students yell aloud Or the half ends with the gong.

He seems a most ferocious beast,
But who can blame his looks.
He's been McDonough's friend so long
They're just alike—in looks.

Blest be the Ties That Bind

There was a little spider
Who on a Sabbath day
Was busy as not every spider
In meeting could be that day.

For, in sooth, this little creature, In looking round for fun, Spied the yellow hair of H. Evans A-shining in the sun.

The golden brown of Edith B.'s, As next to him she sat, Was darker than her neighbor's As 'twas shaded by her hat.

But the wicked little spider
Nothing daunted set to work
And spun a web from ear to ear,
Reckoning not that sudden jerk.

And so we see the moral Of the little spider's fun: If at college you would matches make Use ties that last and do not break.

A True Story

Now, there is a professor at Swarthmore who is so loyal to the College and so in love with sports, especially football, that when he heard of our great and glorious victory he thought he would prepare for the ordeal which a study of the stars had assured him was in store for him—to wit, that he must give a speech. As I have said before, he was very loyal and had no idea of shirking or losing the opportunity of expressing his pleasure at so great a victory. By no better way could he show his appreciation of the importance of the event than by preparing before hand a beautiful and appropriate little speech.

Of course, this is all repetition—as I think the loyal professor's speech itself might have been if it had been written. But the goddess of inspiration was not working for the time being, and if you happened to look over the professor's shoulder you might have seen his speech taking shape something like this:

The stars doubtless represent Swarthmore, while the cloud is fast hiding from view Pennsylvania, as represented by the moon. There are reasons why the professor's mind turned to this form of expression, as you all know; but from the excellent speech he gave us—an inspiration of the moment, as he said—I feel sure he set aside this form of expression as futile.

As Fortune Changes

Two Ionely "Monks," while on their pious way, The "Devils" caught, intending them to play The parts of Jesters at their banquet board And be the butt of all without reward. But the plans of "Devils" never can fall true; Their wit is spent when they their plot construe. One "Monk" displayed a marvelous burst of speed, Escaped, and spread abroad the treacherons deed. As, when the firebell proclaims its loud alarm, The men swarm forth to stay the flames from harm, So to the aid of him in dire distress His brother "Monks" sped hoping for success. Nor was their hope in vain; for, as they sped, The "Devils," seeing vengeance coming, fled. The captive "Monk," enraged by his fight, Still kept his hold and stopped one "Devil's" flight; Another, strength all spent and out of breath, Fell, showing a pale face, the hue of death,

And hair so strange, it must, through sudden fright Have faded—for "Devil's" hair's black as night. And now with arms together tightly tied Escape they could not even if they tried; With gentle stings their weary legs to speed, Far from the college wandered they, indeed, The cold began to gnaw their bones; at last They grouned and shivered with each freezing blast; Their banquet, too, it seemed that they must miss (Alas, how often they remembered this). The hours passed, and the captors then bethought That the two eaptives homeward should be brought. As fortune changed and made the "Devils" flee, So now that fickle goddess ehanged; you see She caused a band of "Devils" to appear; Meanwhile the "Monks," their plan of action clear, Vanished in the darkness and made their way To the college to eurse but not to pray.

Who, who-o, who-oo, said the wind, as it blew along; And the shivers ran up and down your spine, As higher and shriller came the noisy song And the cold yellow moon began to shine. Never mind, on the morrow the brilliant sun
Will dispel all the gloom and flood with light—
To make us all glad at the prospect of fun—
The Crum's icy bridge, made strong in a night.

Act I

(Vulcan's office. Cherub in attendance. Imps report.)

Vulcan—Now, Imps, 'twould seem 'twere best that you should spend

Four hours each week in shop in Cherub's care; But yet another year and 'twere not so: Then three-year Imps, you might do other work. But now to Cherub with your cards of blue. Cherub—To make good all wear and tear on our machines

Five dollars wilt thou pay my dear friend Pluto Ere yet you shall set foot within the shops. And remember this—that four hours each week You must be here on certain scheduled hours.

(Exeunt Imps muttering.)

1st Imp (outside door)—Methinks I have a conflict with hours here.

Besides, for two years have I toiled for Cherub, And that is equal unto all my needs.

Imps (in chorus)—So say we all of us. So say we all.

Act II

(Outside post office.)

2ND IMP—Only last week did 1 to Cherub go. My, how he hemmed and hawed and beat around, Saying first this, then that, till Vulcan came! Then the two did sit in counsel, while I Without the door did await their verdict.

Twas this: he would not have us one by one Stray from his shop. So needs must I Fill out the year and pay to greedy Pluto The fee as he demands it of us all.

5TH IMP—What's this? I saw our Cherub but this morn.

And he does tell this tale: If most the Imps Who had been two years in his dirty shops Did wish to quit, in order that they might Find time to labor at some other work, He would not say them nay—provided that First they gained consent of mighty Vulcan.

(Apollo and Jupiter emerge from latter's office.)

JUPITER—I would that I could aid you, for I think Tis useless that you spend more time at work In Cherub's shops.

Apollo—Thanks, mighty father.
I will abide by Cherub's rash decision,
(Aside) Unless I can induce him soon to change.

(Exit Jupiter.)

IST IMP—What now, Apollo! Hath our Cherub Contrived to get you also in his toils?

Apollo—I fear 'tis so, for Jupiter himself Says he cannot aid me in this matter.

(Whispers with Imps.)

30 IMP—I fear it will go very hard with us Since even you have failed in your request.

Apollo (countenance brightening)—I think I see a way. Let one of you
Draw up in proper style a brief petition,
Which shall be signed with all due form, and then
Presented to your noble master, Vulcan.
But do not, lest your worthy project fail,
Drop any hint that I have aided you.
Should you succeed, methinks I too should reap
The benefits.

IMPS—It shall be done just so.

Act III

Scene 1.—The "Pet"

2D IMP—To noble Vulcan's castle on the heights I did wend my way and laid before him Our petition for his consideration.

If we can gain permission from some one In charge of other work to take it up At this late date he'll have no objection, Provided Cherub's willing and the work Be of neither more nor less importance.

Ist Imp—Directly under Vulean I will work,
For I have heard that Vulean has a course
Where credits gained are equal to our needs.
He will impart to brains of brilliant Imps
Important truths of amperes, ohms, and volts.

IMPS—The work looks good. We will essay the task.

Scene 2.—Vulcan's Workshop

Vulcan—So you would learn of amperes, ohms, and volts.

'Tis well. The class is small and I would fain Have more to try their brains and make across Their foreheads wrinkles long and deep to show That Imps have brains, of which only the use Is needed now to show to all the world That they are men of intellect unequaled.

STUBBORN IMP—Ah so! I never thought of it that way.

But now I know it's true I, too, will join The ranks of all the other Imps and prove The brain of man is better than the hand.

(Imps go outside the door.)

3D IMP—Let's interview the Cherub now and see In what proportion the fee that we did pay Will be returned to us. (Enter Cherub.)

1st Imp—There he is now.

O say, kind Cherub, wilt thon return the fee?

CHERUB—In truth, I'll do for you the best I can.
To those of you who have their work all done
An order will I give on our grim Pluto
To return in full the fee as paid him;
But half, only, shall be returned to those Whose work last year was not complete.

IMPS—'Tis well, we'll all be satisfied with that.

Scene 3.—Imps emerge from Pluto's office with their faces wreathed in smiles.

3D IMP—Our riches are returned; what shall we do?

IMPS (in chorus)—Let's all to town and have a merry time.

1st Imp (to 2d)—I'll hie to town for eats and a good show.

2D IMP—To the far off Navy game I'll go.

"I've Been Working on the Railroad"

(As sung by the Junior girls on their straw ride.)

Sing a song of college life,
This is how 'twill go:
Radcliffe, where the knowledge is,
Wellesley, where they row;

Bryn Mawr for her snobby primps, Vassar for her swells, Smith for her athletes—but To Swarthmore for your belles!

Record of the Freshman Members of the Faculty

Dr. Miller—Raised the hoodoo from room II.
The Dean—Is a dear and the Thursday "at homes" are lovely.

Assistants and Instructors

MISS BATCHELDER—The sweet terror of Comp. I. MR. MILES—Enjoyed the Senjor smoker.

Mr. Marriott—Prefers (?) classes composed of young "schoolmarms."

"Tommy"—Treats the girls well; but we almost forget he is not one of us.

The Return of the "Pet"

Alas, the "Pet" has vanished from our sight! No longer can we gather there at night

To watch the fussers as they wend their way Toward that enjoyment which is their delight.

While they fuss on, contented and serene, And gaze and gaze, nor care if they are seen,

We wander aimless up and down the halls, Bewaiting that the world can be so mean.

And from our sorrow our desire grew—
A worthy one that we shall never rue—
To have our "Pet" restored to us again,
That we might rest and swap old yarns anew.

With thoughts of victory we marched along, Set forth our cause with most pathetic song,

And in the midst of all the fussers paused; We saw our "Pet," knew where it did belong.

With joyous shouts we seized the dear old "Pet," Dragged it with all the speed we knew, and set It in the hall in its accustomed place; It still stands there beneath the glass, you bet.

STANZA 1

Should you ask me whence these stories, Whence these legends and traditions, With the odors of the fudge pans, With the curling smoke of Wharton, With the rushing of Crum's waters, And continual midnight howlings As of thunder in the mountains, I should answer, I should tell you: From the hilltop near the woodland, From our noble Alma Mater. From the throats of verdant Freshmen! First we hear a noisy babbling, Arguments and solemn phrases. Short and tall, Ed and Priscilla, There they sit and talk at mealtime— Talk as if there were no ending. Now is seen a youth approaching Dressed in garments green and yellow, Woddrop, ever talking nonsense Such as ne'er before was heard.

STANZA II

See, a maiden, dainty, gold-haired, On the campus tripping lightly, Plucks a flower, her small namesake, Plucks her likeness in the daisy. Hark! I hear a gentle murmur Some one in the alcove talking. Planning for a trip to Keith's show: Look, 'tis Marjory and Watson! Now we see a fair-haired maiden. Florence Walworth, often pensive, For her thoughts are wandering westward To the land of the State College. To that land of youths and wisdom. Once Louis stooped to pluck a flower— Pluck a flower fresh and lovely— And looking, saw he held a rose-bud. Helen Lukens for her bouquet Gathered from the glistening ripples Water Cress, a Junior emblem. Edith Janes told all who listened— Told them with a smile quite wondrous— That her heart in Steele bound fast was And couldn't possibly be conquered. Curious names loom up before one: Smith, Jones, Green, eatch tongnes unwary. And the Johnsons, big and little, Each one proud to be a Johnson, Come pell-mell from many quarters.

STANZA III

From our books, the books of wisdom, Peer forth Henry Ward and Miller Also Solomon, the wonder, And Colt fondly looks upon them; For he is a true book lover, Is this marvel with his horse laugh. With his constant "whys and wherefores." Myrick with his hair upstanding, Sterner than a wall of Stone. Saving, than of vore tho' Wetter Still 'tis like a piece of Wood-land Like the Woodland in its glory As the glory of the sunset, Which for Miles can be enjoyed. Next there looms on the horizon A black-haired man and black-haired maiden Caroline and Newell Alford. (Lo! they blush to hear it mentioned.)

STANZA IV

There's a maid with mien impressive, Edith Jackson, solemn student, Ever searching wisdom's teachings, For she gets A on all occasions. Behold two athletes, mighty muscle, Mighty strength, and speed surprising, Gwendolen the swift, and Harriet
As they conquer all in hockey.
Hark! a sound as of much eating
Eating of a great abundance;
Who is this but Clarence Vernon
Gobbling everything in vision.
Now, before our list is ended
Comes a maiden whom we all know
Keeper of those wondrons minutes
Of those minutes of great import.
Anne, recorder of the Freshmen,
Keeps them so they ne'er are stolen
By those boasting 1909'ers
By those boasting, bragging Sophomores.

STANZA V

Now a darker, drearier vision
Passes, seeming vague and eloudlike:
I behold our classes scattered,
Sweeping westward, southward, northward,
All forgetful of class quarrels
Rivalries and tribulations—
They with one accord look backward,
Backward to our Alma Mater;
And the many petty troubles,
Like the withered leaves of autumn,
Are caught up by winds of memory,
Are caught up and blown away.

In Young Friends' Association

Dr. Speakman to Dr. Holmes—Doctor, from thy experience, is alcoholism a mystic state?

Dr. Speakman (later)—Was the man a mystic who thought he was in Heaven when his wife left him? Miss James (recently engaged)—How could that happen?

When Hoadley spies upon his class,

- " Dr. Stine refrains from puns,
- "Apsey" cannot quote a line,
- " "Duckie" never plays lacrosse,
- " Battin does not look so Dutch,
- " Dr. Hull is not sarcastic,
- " Alleman breaks not his chalk,
- " Pearson ceases to orate,
- " Hayes no longer seems to dream,
- "Trotter has no use for cats,
- " Mlle. Bronk says not "my dear,"
- " Brooks forgets to give out work,
- "Lowes omits his "as it were,"
- " Miller fails to make a hit.

And Prexie loses all his tact, Why, then it's sure as sure can be, That Swarthmore can't hold you or me.

Our Crum

Oh, poets come and poets go, And all before their death, I know, Who ever have our dear Crum seen Rave o'er its glidings through the green.

It winds and winds, then straightens out, And crooks again, then turns about; And on Sunday morn its silvery splash Catches and spreads each sunny flash.

But poets never on Monday dream; The Crum is then a workday stream, Its silvery spray is brilliant red From the dye that flows o'er its bed.

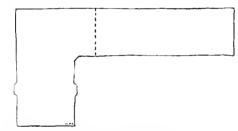

And then perhaps it makes a change: If it turns green it's not so strange, And down below from dirt and slime Foul odors, Crum, rise all the time.

Oh, Crum, what would thy beauties be, And what might not the poet see If Nature had but half a chance, With no plush mills and sewage plants.

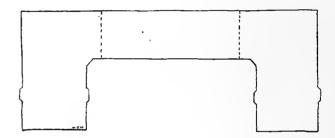

I Wonder Why?

The drawing that you see above
You all must recognize.
It's the finished part of Wharton Hall
One third of its full size.

Another third is added here; Now, don't you like its looks? If this were really added on You het we'd study books.

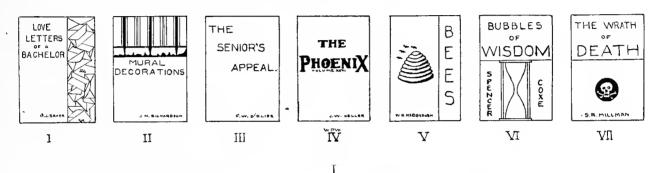

I wonder why it don't take form As this third plan does show. Can it be that the College lacks The gold you see below?

THE SWARTHMORE PRESS

OFFERS THE FOLLOWING PUBLICATIONS BY MEMBERS OF THE SENIOR CLASS.

Mr. Baker is perfect in his art. . . . We recommend this book to the Freshmen.—Dr. Lowes.

II

Mr. Richardson's book is a masterpiece of its kind; but even then the ideals set forth fail to reach the standards of his personal execution.—Doc. Alleman.

TII

Mr. D'Olier's touching story cannot fail to move the hardest heart.—"The Monks" (McGovern and Wickham).

Great Social Event

Miss Graham, Miss Sproul, Miss Pearson, and Miss Burton patronize the matinee benefit of "The Lion and the Mouse" (and thereby hangs a tale).

To fully appreciate the tale one must know the usual seat purchasable for a dollar in a good Philadelphia theater, and the usual costumes of these four of our foremost co-eds on their semi-occasional visits to the places of amusement.

Well, the journey was safely made to the theater entrance when, lo and behold, their footsteps were politely but firmly turned toward the stairs of the Diggers' and Hod Carriers' heaven. Of course, they arrived and finally found the seats in which they were to sit while enjoying the performance. If you want to know the impression left by Swarthmore society on the gallery gods, you had better ask somebody who knows; but don't, as you value your life, ask for the impression made by the gallery gods, or even suggest it by mentioning "The Lion and the Mouse" in the presence of the "goddesses."

The Susan "A" Cunningham Association

This organization, which reached its highest development in 1906, has all but disappeared from the scene. Once it was a mighty and flourishing body, but now it has fallen into such obscurity that it never even has a meeting to elect officers. This is the reason we give last year's officers.

Eligibility to membership in this organization is confined to those who have received seven or more "A's" from Professor Cunningham. The association's motto is, "If thee smokes, smoke good tobacco."

The Officers for 1906

President, George S. Roberts29	A's
Vice-President, S. Dean Caldwell23	A's
Treasurer, William Diebold13	A's
Secretary, Jane Harper27	A's

Prof. Appleton—Mr. Eastburn, what English translation of the Bible is considered a classic?

Eastburn—Wasn't it the St. James version?"

First Impressions of Swarthmore

The first thing I saw, on reaching the College, was a crowd of girls, and it took me quite a time to decide whether I belonged to this place or not. Further on I ran into the worst panic I ever saw at the Registrar's office.—L. F. Dietrick.

Student—Say, "Supe," why don't you have the halls ventilated?

"Supe"—Don't blame me. That's Richardson going over to chemistry.

We note the following concerning Oratory II in the catalog: "Part of this course will consist of extemporaneous talks on subjects assigned in advance."

(Students try too many courses on this plan.— Editor.)

Dr. Stine—Any man is a darn fool that can't master a subject in four years.

Who would believe that a "Deacon" would fuss? Or if he fusses why doesn't he cuss? Ask the girls the first if you would prove it. You'll find out the rest if you jolly Crewitt.

There was a young fellow named "Cot" Who liked a co-ed a lot;
So he hied back to college
To gain some more knowledge—
Graduate first? I guess not!

Dot (at Miss Bronk's tea, helping herself to a cake)
—Say, didn't I swipe that neatly!
Horrors! Miss Bronk was at her elbow.

Duckie (in Philosophy class)—The Pythagoreans had a number for everything.

Bright Student—Was common sense a minus quantity?

Prof. Battin announces as the last speaker in the lecture course, "Mr. Jerome, famous for his fight against the bad evils of New York City."

McD—ll—Well I'm a fool anyway, so I might as well act foolish.

Dr. Brooks to Amos—23 for you. Peaslee sits down.

Who volunteers to answer Dr. Holmes' question: "Would it be wrong for you to fall if I held you out of the window and let go?"

Heard After the Penn Game

Hayes:

Those ancient Greeks as we are told
Were men of might and muscle.
But Swarthmore men,
nine out of ten,
Could make those old
Greeks hustle.

Krueger (addressing the A. A. meeting on the relative importance of the different sports of Swarthmore) — Well, anyway, football is the major at Swarthmore.

Richardson (tennis manager, at the same meeting)—I've been looking all around, but I can't find any track of the marker out there.

Mr. Lamborn lives in East Wing And smokes the time away; He waxes fat as we wax thin And cares not what we say.

Caldwell—He's a crusher. We would like to hear from Coble.

Prize Question

How do you propose to curb the self-importance of the class of 1907?

(Nobody here ean.)

Dr. Miller—Newton took a comet and died.

Caldwell expounds mathematics. It's the truth, according to him—"We have been trying to defeat Pennsylvania for the last thirty-seven years, more or less. We kept getting nearer and nearer the limit, till at last we broke the darned theory and licked 'em."

The Tramps

Colt, Lloyd, Jimmie, Coble. Honorable mention, Max Miller, Terry McGovern.

In the Lab.

When the air gets blue and the dark clouds form, It's silent you better had be.

Don't monkey around and explosions make—

If you do, you'll be classed with Jimmie.

Prof. Miller wrote a football poem of four verses after the Pennsylvania game, but after the Amherst victory, increased the number of verses to twenty-one "in order not to be penalized for holding inaline."

Gone but not forgotten:

The butter.
Michael.
The old hymn books.
January 28—February 2.
The Young Men's Glee Club.

Where are the girls of the Polities class, Grace, Jeannette, Mabel and North? Can it be they couldn't get A's?— We are sure they were able to pass.

Polly Lawrence (in Origin of Christianity)—I used to think, when I was a child, that if I sewed even two stitches on Sunday, I would be eternally damned.

Helen Price (in a horrified whisper)—Oh! nothing like that ever happened in our family!

If Edith B. a big Taylor
And Mary Eliza points North
And Henry T. needs Moore,
What then would Alice be Worth?

Supe (in boys' meeting)—I have to admit that I have not visited the shower baths for four months.

Miss Bronk (In French III, pointing to Krueger, who was sharpening a pencil)—Oh! voila 'le petit enfant.

First Student—I'm taking Chemistry XI now. Second Student—That's a "pipe" course. (Note—We wonder if the bright student would call course 2 in Human Anatomy a stiff course; or World Lit., the second semester, a hell of a course.)

The Senior engineers' employment agency has been notified that the following positions are open to the members of the class of 1907:

- 1 Foreman, pick and shovel gang.
 - 1 Rodman.
 - 1 Inspector of Ballast.
 - 1 Draughtsman.

The engineers met in a body and drew lots for these positions. The results have been kept very secret, but Dame Rumor says, "D'Olier will take charge of the dagoes with the picks and shovels, Milman will look out for the ballast, Darlington will be the rodman, and the draughting will be well done by Knight.

Prof. Stine has little patience with people who say things are not as good as they used to be. "People have no right to say timber doesn't last as well as it used to, for nobody had sense enough to keep a log."

Prof. Hoadley—Is Rowlands sick? Hoffman—Yes. Heart trouble.

Out About Sept. 20, 1906

Edition now out of print

The Sleepers' Club has elected the following officers: Ye High Lazy Sleeper, Nate Smith; Ye Sound Sleeper, Cliff Vernon; Ye Blinker, Colt.

When Pritchard returned after Christmas vacation, he found the station draped in memory of Mr. Cassatt. Coming from the "wild and wooly," of course, he didn't know, so he asked: "Who died in Swarthmore?"

Mistaken Identity

Katherine Kessler (dashing down the hall toward the post office)—Oh, John, John Pitman, let me in. Do you hear? Let me in. Oh, I think you're mean—she gives the figure before her a vigorous push—why didn't you—

John Russel Hayes (gently disentangling himself from her vigorous grasp)—Er—is thee the little postmistress?

Nate Smith cheered on the "Supe," who was fixing the electric signal attachment to the clock, by remarking, "Did Ingersoll invent that, too?"

Wouldn't This Jar You?

Thursday, Oct. 4, 1906.

Mr. Krueger:

The girls in West Wing will deem it a favor if you will not insist upon waking them every morning before six-thirty by your thoughtless mode of calling the boys above.

The day the breakfast food failed, this note was found on "Snpe's" desk: "All out of horse feed. Jim."

How Jess and Jean Spend Their Time in History VI

There was once a young sport named Jess,
The ladies did him much oppress,
He's been engaged to some
But threw them over, by gum!
Now Jess! you might as well 'fess!

-J. M. W.

To Jean

One time a smiter was smitten,
By things that a smiter had written,
The smitten soon wrote,
To the smiter who smote,
A note that the smiter was smitten.

--"JESS."

Miss Bronk—I am too full for utterance (applause. Peaslee: "Hold her up, boys"); not of French wines, but of joy.

Proof of the 23 Theorem

$$0 = \frac{23 - 23}{1 - 1} = \frac{23(1 - 1)}{1 - 1} = 23$$

Howard Fussell says he is majoring in no trumps.

Hoffman surprises the Physics class, in discussing the merits of distilled and undistilled Schuylkill water, with the following brilliant remark, "Professor, you might as well drink a menagerie as a graveyard."

Girls Wouldn't 'Fess Up

Dr. Brooks—What has taken the place of silks? (Silence among the girls.)

Fred Simons—Mercerized cotton.

He Ought to Know

Caldwell (at football meeting)—If you girls ever broke an engagement, break one to-morrow.

Why the Post "Grads" are in College

William Diebold.—To study economics and act as financial advisor to the College.

Frances Darlington.—Swarthmore is so near Media.

Helen Heed.—I want to be a Master.

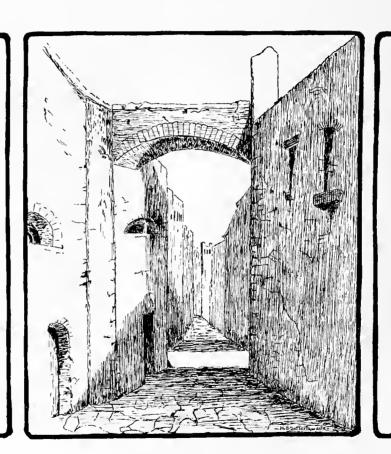

Ross W. Marriott.—Indiana had no Charm-ers for me.

J. EGBERT MILES.—The west is too wild and wooly. SERENA H. MILLER.—To play on the hockey team.

Percy Rudolph Roberts.—To make up for my absences at meeting in 1904-5.

Thomas Laurence Sherwood. — I am waiting to grow a little older.

Time and Proof

Trained engineers are not quickly convinced. It takes time and proof. So when you learn that nearly three thousand great office buildings, colleges, institutions, hotels, factories, etc., are heated by the

Webster System of Steam Circulation

you know that its great superiority must have been thoroughly proved, for it has been installed by the greatest engineers in the world.

It is far more efficient than ordinary systems, yet more economical.
